HALCYON 1984

Swarthmore College
Swarthmore, Pennsylvania

Four years of change

The primary role of the Halcyon is to portray the people and events of the previous academic years. It is difficult, however, to think of Swarthmore in terms of such a short time span. Over the past four years, the Seniors have witnessed many transformations which have directly affected their college experience.

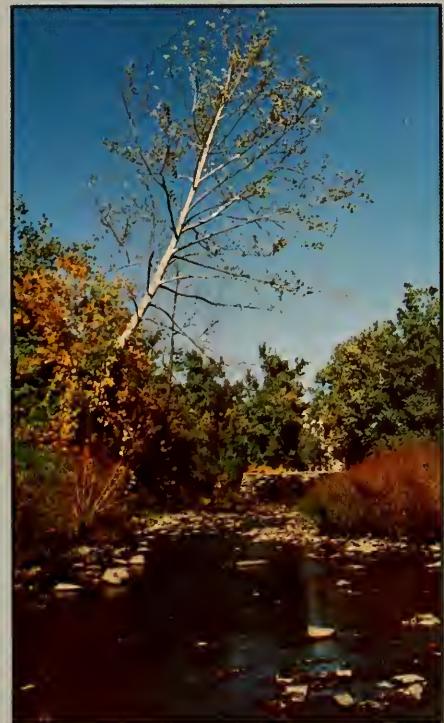

What many underclassmen now take for granted once represented important change for the Seniors. It is our aim to interweave herein some of the important transitions that have occurred during our stay at Swarthmore. This yearbook is therefore dedicated to the Class of

ACADEMICS

Swarthmore's pride is in its academics, and both the atmosphere and the inhabitants reflect the school's reputation and tough standards. There is a committment here that is unequalled by any other school, and it is evident wherever you go, whether it's McCabe, Cornell, Parrish lawn, or a random dorm room. Few are the schools where you can find a sizeable portion of the student population studying on a Friday night or Saturday afternoon. But though we're academically-oriented, that's not to say we don't do anything else or have any fun . . .

Extra-Curricular

... because aside from academics, there are the dozens of organizations, committees, councils, groups, or teams that students participate. There really is something for everyone — the musical, intellectual, athletic, journalistic, whatever — and nearly everyone is involved, whether it is a fraternity, a study group, or an intramural volleyball team. Of course, while this kind of extra-curricular activity might seem to be an indulgence for some, there are a few who even take it one step further ... after class, lab, studying ... in between practice, meetings, deadlines ... after hours ... that's ...

On the following four pages lies a short synopsis of the major events of the past four years. Some come easily to mind; others may have been forgotten. Some issues have transcended time: the debate in Central America. Draft legislation, divestment, the Blue Route, or USSR relations. The events below are merely the more sensational or important happenings during our four years at Swarthmore. They serve as a reminder, as well as a key to unlocking other memories which we so often relate to such events.

'80-'81 We were new and excited college students — our Freshmen year

National: Swarthmore students were dismayed at the election of Ronald Reagan

(only 7% of the students supported him). John Lennon was murdered in New York in early December. The space shuttle made its maiden voyage in the spring. Ordinary People won the Academy Award for Best Pictures. International: The American hostages in Iran, after 444 days in captivity, were released just as President Reagan was inaugurated. Earthquakes in Algeria killed thousands, the Pope was nearly killed by a Turkish gunman, and Israeli planes strafed an Iraqi nuclear reactor. Sports: The Phillies won the World Series, the Eagles lost to Oakland in the Super Bowl, Georgia won the NCAA football title, and Boston took the NBA Championship. At Swarthmore: Janet Dickerson was selected to succeed Thomas Blackburn as Dean, and Dorie Friend stepped down as President. Construction began on Mertz, and Brian De-

Palma filmed a segment of the movie "Blowout" in Mary Lyons. The jeans burning incident in front of Sharples protesting the GLU's "Blue Jeans' Day" sparked a heated battle on campus and off. A cheerleading squad was formed on campus and Finian's Rainbow was the spring musical. Room choosing odds were changed with the closing of Pitterer and Palmer, both replaced by the new dorm.

'81-'82. Adjusted and content with college life — we were Sophomores

International: Most of the major events of the year were international in nature. Anwar Sadat was assassinated, Britain invaded the Falklands and defeated Argentina, and Israel invaded Lebanon. Meanwhile, Reagan's Central American policies began to arouse concern. Sports: The Dodgers beat the Yankees 4-2 in the World Series. San Francisco won the Super Bowl. Los Angeles won the NBA title, while Clemson (football) and UNC (basketball) took College titles. At Swarthmore: The Delta Upsilon committee was formed to investigate the fraternity, while the search for a President continued at a snail's pace. The Mertz dedication gave reason to celebrate in the fall, and Ware Pool was opened in the winter. Mary Lyons 2 burned to the ground, the football team went 7-2 and the men's lacrosse team won the MAC title. Also, a stripper performed in Sharples creating quite a stir, while students performed in "Pippin."

'82-'83 As upperclassmen
we were finally in control of things

— we were Juniors

National: Chicago elected its first black Mayor (as did Philadelphia later with its election of Wilson Goode). A Tylenol killer was on the loose, while the draft issue caused debate concerning educational policy. International: The Beirut massacre on September 1 shocked the world and brought down criticism on the Israeli presence in Lebanon. The US Embassy in Beirut was attacked and 63 people killed. The Pope went to Poland, and Yuri Andropov succeeded Leonid Brezhnev as Soviet Premier. Sports:

Washington (football), St Louis (baseball), the Sixers (basketball), and the Islanders (hockey) each won their respective professional championships, while Penn State and North Carolina State took the college titles in football and basketball. A football strike shortened the NFL season and the USFL started its first season in the spring. At Swarthmore: DU's lease was terminated and the frat dissolved for a two-year probationary period. While Parrish underwent renovation, including new fire alarm installment, Cornell science library was opened, and Willets suffered several contained fires. David Fraser was chosen and inaugurated as President, women's soccer gained varsity status, women's lacrosse was invited to Nationals, Swarthmore regained the Hood Trophy, and Baseball finally became winners (14-5-1).

Gotcha!

'83-'84 at the top,
what we had anticipated and worked so hard for — Senior year

National: The forthcoming campaign once again became the main issue, as Mondale and Hart battled through the primary season. "The Day After," a nuclear war documentary, brought the horrors of such conflict to a record number of viewers. Sally Ride became the first American women in space, and Vanessa Williams became the first black Miss America. Michael Jackson's name became a household word. "Terms of Endearment" swept the oscars. International: The Korean Airliner incident, in which 269 people perished, heightened superpower tensions. 241 Marines died in a bomb attack on their Beirut headquarters, US Forces invaded Grenada and ousted a "pro-Cuban" dictator. The Winter Olympics were held in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia. The Soviets broke off arms negotiations, and later boycotted the Los Angeles Olympics. Sports: Baltimore topped the Phillies in the World Series. Oakland clobbered Washington in the Super Bowl. The Celtics won the NBA Crown yet again, and Edmonton stopped the Islanders for the Cup. At Swarthmore: Tarble burned in a late night fire, and Clothier nearly met the same fate, both triggering a Parrish sit-in to question the College's fire alarm system. Palmer was re-opened to upperclass students, the Tri-College concert with Madness fell through, but Worthstock kept the crowds entertained all day. An Alice Paul newsletter caused a level of debate not seen since the DU newsletter. New lab space was added to Dupont, students sang and danced in "Grease" and Graduation was held outside despite the questionable weather. Men's and women's lacrosse made the nationals, cross-country engaged their finest season (13-2), and the football team played to a regional television audience. A late afternoon storm brought the end to "the tree," replaced by a new tree from the class of '84.

... it's all over

Commencement

The 112th Swarthmore College Graduation, our graduation, took place outdoors in the amphitheatre on Memorial Day, despite a series of downpours. Beneath a multitude of umbrellas, parents, professors and friends applauded as President Friend presented us, the 320 graduates of the Class of '84.

Receiving diplomas, often in exchange for a balloon, was the highlight of the morning. Also to be remembered are the vivid and touching remarks made by Senior Class speakers (and cousins) Becky Fountain and Kate Wilson. Perhaps giving direction to our thoughts and daydreams, we were prompted to recall the past four years of our lives here at Swarthmore. — it often seemed like an eternity, yet it passed so quickly . . . we had to work so hard, but there were so many fun times . . . so many people I still don't know, so many friendships I wouldn't replace for the world . . . Wow, we really made it! . . .

Back to reality, the ceremony continued with messages from each of five Honorary Degree recipients. The final message of farewell came to us from a robot, made especially for graduation by the ever-amazing engineers among us.

Leaving the amphitheatre, paper in hand, we couldn't help but feel mixed emotions . . . the end of an important, unique, and unforgettable time in our lives . . . but also the beginning . . .

Time to celebrate!, with Jesse Winer, Miriam Glaser, Keith Cornell, Lisa Baldwin, Erica Marcus

There are many untold stories that accompany the making of this yearbook. It all started in the fall with the Tarble fire that destroyed the original Halcyon office. Then there were complications, and much stalling, with finding a suitable location for a new office, followed by a flood and a small fire in our newly situated home. We then had to construct our own darkroom.

With all of these problems finally behind us, three editors and a staff of twenty eight attempted the colossal task of capturing in words and pictures the past academic year, as well as the transitions that have occurred over the past four years; all this in the midst of our usual hectic SWAT routines.

In retrospect, however, the late nights, last minute photo sessions, extended deadlines, all-college mailings, post-graduation work, etc. were worth it, and very necessary for the completion of this book.

We hope that this yearbook will serve as a valuable souvenir for everyone. In particular, we hope that the Seniors can view this book as a means to re-live their Swarthmore experience — the good and the bad, the wins and the losses, the A's and the F's, orientation, graduation, and everything in between.

Good luck to us all, and hope to see you all on alumni weekend.

Sincerely,
Gwyneth, Jim, Donna

P.S. Special thanks to everyone who helped in the production of this book, especially to the Gilroy's — Mike and Barb. Our apologies to anyone or any group that was missed, and for any misspelled names. We appreciate all submitted photos, and only wish more of you could have participated and therefore have been better represented.
